Dear Sir (or Madam),

On 28th September we are adopting mechanical methods for certain sections of our work, and from that date we propose, subject to your approval, to submit the records of your Current Account(s) in loose-leaf statement form, accompanied by the relative paid cheques. We will provide you with a special cover to be kept in your possession in which to retain these statements.

The advantages of the new system to our clients, which we are confident will be readily appreciated, are the simplicity and clearness of the entries and the showing of a daily balance, enabling them to agree their accounts to a given date. It is intended that the statement should be retained by you, and you will thus be saved not only the necessity of returning the pass book to the Bank, but also the postal charges incurred in so doing.

In order to save you the trouble we can arrange to send these statements to you by post, and if you wish them sent on any particular date perhaps you will be good enough to inform us, when your instructions will have our careful attention. They may, however, still be obtained from the Bank at any time.

We shall have pleasure in assuming that the proposal contained in this letter is agreeable to you unless we hear to the contrary.

We shall be obliged if you will be good enough to send your present pass book to us by return if it is not already in our possession.

Yours faithfully,

W. R. Chapple

Manager.

Gentlemen:

I have just drawn a check for £12.2.0 in favor of the Royal Numismatic Society. This clears my account with the exception of possibly two shillings. I am herewith returning my check book with one check signed. Whatever balance there may be please draw out and close the account and give the few shillings to some charity or relief organization. As I see no prospect of returning to England I might as well close this account as I trust I can always open a new one if I should have occasion.

Very truly yours,

HW:JG
